

Sent: Wednesday, May 10

Transform your workday

Steve Cawley

Gabriel Eszterhas

Nerissa E. Morris

A Message from the Workday Sponsors

Dear University of Miami Faculty and Staff,

On Wednesday, April 26, the Enterprise Resource Planning \(ERP\) Executive Steering Committee \(ESC\) decided to delay the Workday Finance implementation beyond June 1, 2017. After a detailed evaluation of date options, the new go-live date for the Workday Finance implementation is September 1. This date was chosen after careful analysis of many factors, including the impact on resources based on competing priorities, integration changes, challenges related to data conversion, reporting, and overall user readiness. Although each potential new go-live date had varying degrees of risk, we believe the new go-live date will provide the necessary amount of time and opportunity for additional testing and validation of the system.

Training opportunities for Workday Finance roles will continue to be available, and new training sessions, including practice lab dates and times, are being added to the schedule. These new dates and opportunities will be communicated as soon as possible.

If you have any questions, please email us at: workday@miami.edu and we will get back to you as soon as possible. Please visit the Workday Finance Website for additional information and updates.

We appreciate your support, and look forward to a smooth transition.

Sincerely,

Steve Cawley
Vice President for Information Technology
and CIO

Gabriel Eszterhas
Associate Vice President and Controller

Nerissa E. Morris
Vice President for Human Resources

Have questions? Ask a Workday expert by emailing: workday@miami.edu